The Licensed Practical Nurses Association of British Columbia

What is the LPNABC?

The Licensed Practical Nurses Association of British Columbia was formed in 1951. It was incorporated under the Societies Act of British Columbia in 1965. The LPNABC was established to support Licensed Practical Nurses by promoting the profession to the public. The LPNABC works together with other organizations to continue to support Licensed Practical Nurses in the Province of British Columbia with full utilization, opportunities for continued needs and education. LPNABC continues to lobby for professional recognition of the LPN to the public, government and the employers. LPNABC also works to assist the LPNs to be the professional nurse they are.
